AMO Lectures
for Young Asia
Scholars

Are you interested in China's position in global finance?
Do you wonder what Australia's security strategy is?
Do you know how and why Japan contributes to development aid?
Do you plan to become an Asia expert?

Apply for ALYAS!

What is ALYAS?

- ALYAS stands for AMO Lectures for Young Asia Scholars - a course of 10 lectures for outstanding Czech university students of Asia affairs, which will run from October 2010 to May 2011

What do we offer?

- participation in exclusive round table discussions
- opportunity to interact with nine high-ranking diplomats from the Asia-Pacific region and leading Czech and foreign Asia experts in a small group setting
- extensive coverage of Asia's contemporary political, economic, security and social affairs
- AMO Young Asia Scholar certificate for participants who successfully complete the course

Who are we looking for?

- Master students, Ph.D. candidates and young scholars interested in contemporary Asia affairs
- participants fluent in English
- motivated students who will participate in discussions, attend regularly and prepare for lectures by reading assigned materials

How to apply?

- send your application to alyas2010@amo.cz by 26 September 2010
- attach your CV and motivation letter (1 page in English) which should include your previous academic or professional experience in Asia studies and how the course relates to your academic, personal, and professional interests
